

Full cycle development web/mobile/software

The challenge:

Web/mobile/software product needed with short time to market

- The resources/organization is not available in-house to realize the current marketing roadmap
- Building and managing an in-house development team is expensive, resource draining and time consuming. There is no guarantee for a high quality outcome
- Requirements are often lacking in quality/detail
- Time to market is essential
- Aftercare and maintenance of the solution is crucial
- Budget requires a cost-effective solution
- Highly competent development team with relevant specialities is required to ensure quality in the product, and in the software development and deployment process

The solution:

Full cycle web/mobile/software development

- It is a possibility to have a representative locally in the client's office to coordinate and guide the project
- Top-of-the-line development organization through Rocketworks
- Relevant specialists already in place – no need to recruit
- We can work with your organization to finalize the requirements
- When requirements are known, our development organization will build a well-documented solution to fit
- Maintenance of the solution will be performed according to agreed SLAs
- Quality is a “sacred cow” for Rocketworks. We help our clients solve their challenges to completion. Not only do we give access to a team of suitable professionals - we also work with the client to gain the desired results from the development team on a distance
- Cost savings through quality in the process and lower rates